State Farm

(highly recommended)

Federation of Insured Dog Owners, Inc.

(<http://www.dogbitequote.com>)

United Services Automobile Association

(for veterans and families of veterans)

Chubb Group

Amica

Auto-Owners Insurance

NEWS:

Farmers Insurance has announced that it is no longer writing new policies in California for dogs identified as pit bulls, rottweilers or wolf hybrids. Farmer's clients in CA should check with their agents to learn when their policy is up for renewal and begin looking for a stand alone dog policy or - preferably - a new, non-discriminatory provider such as State Farm. Farmer's clients outside of CA are advised to stay alert in the event that their decision to block select dog breed(s) rolls into your home state.

Please Note: Insurance agents from independently run offices are not obligated to sell you a policy. If someone who represents one or more of the parent companies listed here refuses you, keep searching until you find an agent who will work with you. It goes without saying that a dog with a bite history will be much harder to insure, so work to keep your dog's record clean by being a responsible dog owner.*
